

CUSTOMER:  LexisNexis®

PARTNERS:   Microsoft

LexisNexis was looking to consolidate their virtual desktop options into a single, cohesive solution. They were working with a variety of incompatible environments that siloed departments, causing unnecessary complexity, and costing more money than they wanted to spend. They engaged Coretek to design a Citrix Cloud-compatible solution using Azure Virtual Desktop (AVD), and Coretek recommended Nerdio Manager for Enterprise to facilitate the migration.

CUSTOMER SCENARIO

Siloed environments: LexisNexis' desktop options were split among multiple environments that didn't work well together, including RDS, VMWare ESX, and Citrix.

Expensive confusion: Working across so many uncooperative environments was not only frustrating and inefficient, but also costly.

Need to streamline: LexisNexis wanted to simplify their environment and save money, and their research showed that migrating to Azure was the best way to do both those things.

KEYS TO WINNING

Ease of use: With Nerdio Manager for Enterprise, LexisNexis was confident that their internal IT team would be able to manage the day-to-day operations of AVD.

Quick deployment: Nerdio was able to work with the customer to deploy a pilot program, running Azure alongside Citrix Cloud, within just a few days.

Scalability: After the initial pilot deployment to a few hundred users, Nerdio's Advanced auto-scale technology made it easy for LexisNexis to extend AVD and Nerdio Manager to thousands of users.

CUSTOMER OUTCOMES

Consolidated solution: LexisNexis now runs Nerdio Manager for Enterprise across the organization, enabling synchronicity and consistency.

Cost reduction: With their new streamlined system, LexisNexis has eliminated the need for expensive onsite infrastructure, solved the confusing multi-software departmental billing issues, and reduced their overall software costs.

Large-scale deployment: LexisNexis is currently running several thousand users on AVD, and their administrators are managing the solution easily.

QUOTES & EXCERPTS
